	The government decree of 26 December 1954, which abolished rationing and raised food prices, is causing widespread discontent among the Rumanian people. The reaction of the populace to the decree was one of desperation since the new higher prices of food renders almost impossible the ability of the average worker to eke out a livelihood. In one area where 52 factories are situated, the workers bitterly complain of the price increase. The new decree has made it impossible for an individual who earns 500 lei, or less, per month to buy clothes. The decree is considered to be a decision favoring the "capitalistic" Communists, a reference to the privileged Communist hierarchy, which includes the
